Food Security

Food security is one of the top issues worldwide and a "very top priority" for the Obama administration. "There is no reason why we should have the kind of hunger in the world that we have today," Tony Hall, the executive director of the Washington-based Alliance to End Hunger, said, with "well over 1 billion people who are chronically hungry, many to the point of starving." The United States, Hall said, still ranks as the world’s largest contributor to the World Food Programme and donates food assistance on a bilateral basis as well. U.S. nonprofit groups and nongovernmental organizations also provide food assistance in addition to the government funding. Hall said the U.S.' contribution to the cause of eliminating hunger worldwide is equal to about 40% of total worldwide contributions. In 2008 alone, the U.S. Agency for Int. Development provided 2.6 million metric tons of food, valued at more than $2.6 billion, which benefited approximately 56 million people in 49 countries on four continents. Hall praised the Obama administration's Global Hunger and Food Security Initiative, which he said addresses the issue of hunger comprehensively, and called it "the best piece I have ever read" on hunger under five presidents.

Looking Back

The Berlin Wall: 20 Years Later: The Berlin Wall — symbol of a divided city within a divided nation within a divided continent — marked the geopolitical and ideological cleavage of Cold War Europe. Its demise marked the triumph of western models of personal autonomy and economic entrepreneurialism, and of the desire to live in freedom. Among the voices gathered here are those of leading scholars, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a leading scholar, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading magazine, a citizen activist in Berlin, a man who has lived on both sides of the Wall, a dissident from a leading mag

A Five Part PBS Series We Shall Remain

“We Shall Remain, a provocative multi-media project that establishes Native history as an essential part of American history.” This series spans four centuries and shows Native Americans’ history as part of the national experience from the Mayflower to the Wounded Knee occupation of 1973. Each episode is viewable online and accompanied by a full transcript and teacher’s guide. The series shows how Native peoples

National American Indian & Alaska Native Heritage Month

National American Indian and Alaska Native Heritage Month is celebrated every November to recognize the intertribal cultures and to educate the public about the heritage, history, art, and traditions of the American Indian and Alaska Native people.

National American Indian Heritage Month was first designated in 1990

under a joint congressional resolution approved by President George H.

W. Bush. Each year, the sitting president issues a proclamation, as did

President Obama this year. On November 5, Obama hosted the first-ever

White House Tribal Nations Conference, calling it “the largest and most widely attended gathering of tribal leaders in our history.” (See President Obama’s opening remarks.) Read more: America.gov

Presidential Proclamation on Native American Heritage Month 2009

“The indigenous peoples of North America -- the First Americans

-- have woven rich and diverse threads into the tapestry of our Nation's heritage. Throughout their long history on this great land, they have faced moments of profound triumph and tragedy alike. During National Native American Heritage Month, we recognize their many accomplishments, contributions, and sacrifices, and we pay tribute to their participation in all aspects of American society. This month, we celebrate the ancestry and time-honored traditions of American Indians and Alaska

Natives in North America. They have guided our land stewardship policies, added immeasurably to our cultural heritage, and demonstrated courage in the face of adversity. […]

Native Americans have distinguished themselves as inventors, entrepreneurs, spiritual leaders, and scholars. Our debt to our

First Americans is immense, as is our responsibility to ensure their fair, equal treatment and honor the commitments we made to their forebears.” Presidential Proclamation on Native American

Lesson Plans EdSitement/ National Endowment for the Humanities

• Anishinabe - Ojibwe - Chippewa: Culture of an Indian Nation - This lesson focuses on one American Indian Nation, the Anishinabe, also known as the Ojibwe, Ojibway, or Chippewa Indians. Students will learn how to conduct a research project on different historical, geographical, and cultural aspects of this Native American group.

• Native American Cultures Across the U.S. - This lesson discusses the differences between common representations of Native Americans within the U.S. and a more differentiated view of historical and contemporary cultures of five American Indian tribes living in different geographical areas. Students will learn about customs and traditions such as housing, agriculture, and ceremonial dress for the Tlingit, Diné, Lakota, Muscogee, and Iroquois peoples.

• Not Indians - Many Tribes: Native American Diversity - Students study the interaction between environment and culture as they learn about three vastly different Native groups in a game-like activity that uses vintage photographs, traditional stories, photos of artifacts, and recipes.

• Traditions and Languages of Three Native Cultures: Tlingit, Lakota, & Cherokee - This lesson compares the cultures and languages of the Tlingit, Lakota, and Cherokee American Indian tribes, and helps students learn the importance of preserving a group’s traditions.

Literature: Indigenous Storytelling

Storytelling is an effective technique to capture the imaginations of young minds and improve students' language skills. Storytelling also can appeal to different senses and learning styles, and can be a wonderful way to connect cultures.

“The indigenous peoples that first inhabited the Americas held their literature in memory to be transmitted orally, and members of surviving indigenous nations still do. Before there was writing, there were stories. Over millennia, stories descended through generations, in families and communities -- stories that captured the values and legends of diverse societies. Gifted storytellers committed hundreds of tales and verses to memory, and they were highly honored as entertainers and teachers who inspired, instilled values, and guided behavior.

Writing was invented, and many stories transmitted orally were written down, but storytellers continued to enthral traditional communities around the world. Even the 20th-century technological revolution, which brought radio, television, the Internet, and digital media, did not silence storytellers.

Indigenous Americans have a rich oral tradition among their many distinct tribes, or nations, who inhabited North and South America well before the first European explorer appeared. Today these stories, preserved within their communities, reach broader audiences thanks to storytellers like Sunny Dooley and Dovie Thomason.”

The Legend of Eagleman

It was on a summer morning in the days before Se-eh-ha lost the love of the River People. Just as the sun came over the eastern hills, the Chief of Cactus Village stood on his brush arbor and shouted, "My people! The gods have favored us. We have stored enough food to last all winter. Our families are well fed. Tomorrow at dawn the warriors will go on a rabbit drive. Each man must have four arrows. Get busy and repair your weapons." Coyote, Eagleman, quail, bear, and other characters relate their adventures in two dozen delightful tales Anna Shaw heard her father tell when she was young. The author, a Pima herself, unfolds tales as passed down from generation to generation. Pima Indian Legends (University of Arizona Press)

Teaching Material

- Smithsonian: Indigenous Geography welcomes visitors to explore universal themes from the perspectives of Native communities throughout the Western Hemisphere. Indigenous Geography presents a multi-layered view of indigenous ways of life, and of issues affecting contemporary indigenous peoples. View the site in either English or Spanish. Includes lesson plans on teaching cultural diversity.
- Smithsonian: Catlin Classroom. Take a virtual journey to meet American Indians of the 1830s with artist, ethnologist, and showman George Catlin. This site compiles paintings, historical documents, and commentary from contemporary experts so you can explore the intersections of two cultures, both in Catlin's time and today.
- PBS Classroom: Circle of Stories uses documentary film, photography, artwork and music to honor and explore Native American storytelling. "Speaking is our primary way to communicate a powerful narrative. However, communication does not stop with the spoken word. All cultures have told stories enhancing them with body language, food, dance, art, music, storytelling, drama, crafts, literature and religious rites. Storytelling reflects our rich cultural and religious heritage of the generations before us, and it leads us to understand how our past has influenced our present.”

On Language

Two Languages in Mind, but Just One in the Heart - Author of more than a dozen novels, a memoir, poetry and children's books, Louise Erdrich, writes about the inspiration she derives from Ojibwemowin, the Chippewa (Ojibwe) language:

“For years now I have been in love with a language other than the English in which I write, and it is a rough affair. Every day I try to learn a little more Ojibwe. I have taken to carrying verb conjugation charts in my purse, along with the tiny notebook I’ve always kept for jotting down book ideas, overheard conversations, language detritus, phrases that pop into my head. Now that little notebook includes an increasing volume of Ojibwe words. My English is jealous, my Ojibwe elusive. Like a besieged unfaithful lover, I’m trying to appease them both.”

Did you know? Navajo is the most widely spoken American Indian language, and almost one-fourth of Navajos speak a language other than English at home — the highest percentage of all tribes. Unfortunately, only one-half of the 300 or so native languages once spoken in North America still have any living speakers. America.gov
In Focus: Thanksgiving Day – November 26

Short Story by O. Henry: Two Thanksgiving Day Gentlemen

"There is one day that is ours. There is one day when all we Americans who are not self-made go back to the old home to eat saleratus biscuits and marvel how much nearer to the porch the old pump looks than it used to. Bless the day. President Roosevelt gives it to us. We hear some talk of the Puritans, but don't just remember who they were. Bet we can lick 'em, anyhow, if they try to land again. Plymouth Rocks? Well, that sounds more familiar. Lots of us have had to come down to hens since the Turkey Trust got its work in. But somebody in Washington is leaking out advance information to 'em about these Thanksgiving proclamations."

Read the short story

Mark Twain on Thanksgiving

"Thanksgiving Day, a function which originated in New England two or three centuries ago when those people recognized that they really had something to be thankful for - annually, not oftener - if they had succeeded in exterminating their neighbors, the Indians, during the previous twelve months instead of getting exterminated by their neighbors, the Indians. Thanksgiving Day became a habit, for the reason that in the course of time, as the years drifted on, it was perceived that the exterminating had ceased to be mutual and was all on the white man's side, consequently on the Lord's side; hence it was proper to thank the Lord for it and extend the usual annual compliments."
